Cass County, Michigan
Cass County was named in honor of Governor Lewis Cass

Cass County, located in Southwestern Michigan, the second county east of Lake Michigan, bordered on the South by Indiana, lies 75 miles across the lower end of Lake Michigan from Chicago, and 15 miles from the Lake Michigan ports of Benton Harbor and St. Joseph.

In size it is 24 miles east and west by 21 ½ miles North and South and is comprised of fifteen townships, one city-Dowagiac, and four incorporated villages-Cassopolis, Edwardsburg, Marcellus and Vandalia.

The population according to the 2020 census was 51,589. It is served by several major highways including M-60 and US-12, which follows the old Sauk Indian Trail, two railroads-the Amtrak and the Canadian National railways, and the Dowagiac Municipal Airport, with paved runways and lights for night landing.

It is a versatile type of county, noted not only for its general farming, but for the many lakes used for all kinds of water sports, trout streams, golf courses, ski resorts and wooded areas-including large acreages owned by the State Department of Natural Resources designated as hunting preserves.

Cass County has more than 250 lakes and ponds. There are nine county parks open to the public with facilities from picnicking to cross-country skiing.

The first inhabitants in Michigan invaded this area some 10,000 to 30,000 years ago. Their weapons are found all over this county.

Huge elephants roamed over Cass County, at least eight skeletal remains of these creatures have been found in marl pits. Michigan's only diamond, the Dowagiac diamond, about 11 ½ carats, was found in a gravel pit north of Dowagiac in the early 1900's.

Bald Hill in Newberg Township, with an elevation of over 1,140 feet, is the highest point in southwestern Michigan. Cass County with 13 prairies has more than any other county in the state.

In the days before settlement by white men, Cass County was well populated. More than 25 Indian mounds were found in the county. French trappers visited the county long before any permanent settlement was made.

Three bands of Potawatomi occupied the county when the first settlers came. Weesaw's band of 150 members has their winter camp in Newton's Woods; Shavehead's band of about 75 had their main camp about three miles east of Shavehead Lake in Porter Township, and Pokagon with 250, had a summer camp and cornfield on the Pokagon prairie in the township that bears his name.

Cass County had the first permanent settled community in southwestern Michigan, Uzziel Putnam, a veteran of the war of 1812, being the first white settler, coming on November 18, 1825, and followed by Baldwin Jenkins, Squire Thompson, Abram Townsend, Israel Markham and son.

On November 5, 1829, by an act of the Territorial legislature, Cass County was organized and divided into four townships, Pokagon, LaGrange, Penn and Ontwa.

The first Board of Supervisors met in the home of Ezra Beardsley on October 4, 1831, in what is now the village of Edwardsburg. The first Circuit Court sessions were also held in Edwardsburg, as was the Probate Court.

The first school west of Detroit and Monroe was taught in Pokagon Township in 1828 by Mrs. Gamaliel Townsend, and the first tax-supported school was established in April 1840, in what is now the City of Dowagiac.

The first state fish hatchery was established at the Crystal Springs Campground in 1873 and moved to Paris in 1881. The Crystal Springs Campground in Pokagon Township is the oldest Methodist camp meeting grounds in Michigan.

Dowagiac, which was the smallest city in the United States when incorporated in 1877, takes its name from the Potawatomi word "Ndowagayuk" meaning "foraging ground."

On M-60 near Vandalia, a state historical marker calls attention to the nearby junction of two main line "underground railroads," the "Illinois" line from St. Louis, and the "Quaker" line from the Ohio River, manned by Cass County Quakers, the two lines merging here and going on into Canada. Cass County was the scene of the Kentucky slave raid of 1847. There is a mural to commemorate this in downtown Village of Cassopolis.

Russ Forest (Newton's Woods) in Volinia Township, a 13-acre Cass County Park, one of the few permanently preserved virgin forests in Michigan. The largest tulip poplar tree in the State of Michigan is located there. The Michigan State University research facility surrounds the 13-acre county park and covers 580 acres.

The Cassopolis-Dowagiac Memorial Highway and the Memorial Park on the highway commemorates the men from Cass County who gave their lives in World War I and II, Korea and Vietnam.

A monument on M-60 in Penn Township commemorates Capt. Iven C. Kincheloe, the first USAF Space Pioneer, whose home was in Penn Township.

Southwestern Michigan College was established in 1964. The first President, Dr. Nathan A. Ivey and faculty numbering 20 accepted the first 525 students in September 1966. The college has a second campus located in Milton Township.
